Whole Class Reading

In primary schools recently, there has been a lot of interest in ways to approach whole-class reading lessons. Teaching the whole class instead of individual groups means that all pupils can read with the teacher more often, moving faster through more or longer texts and benefiting from the teacher's expert explanations, modelling, questioning and feedback. It also makes possible more integration between topic-related reading, reading as stimulus for writing, daily reading aloud to the class and following a 'class reader'.

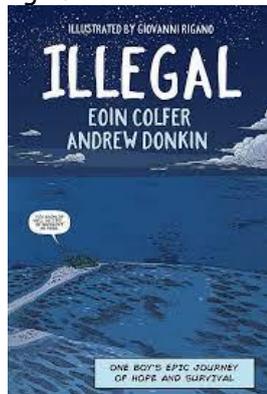

Enchanted Forest

Neverland

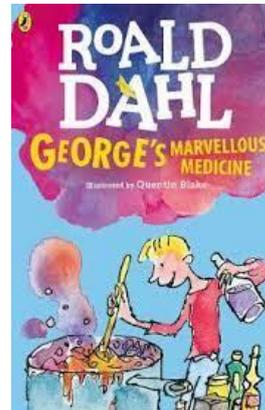

We aim to cover a broad selection of text types, classic and modern. The children are enjoying the repetition of "The Hungry Caterpillar." This help to structure sentences. The modern tale "Superworm" will also be used to inspire the children's writing of stories in Neverland.

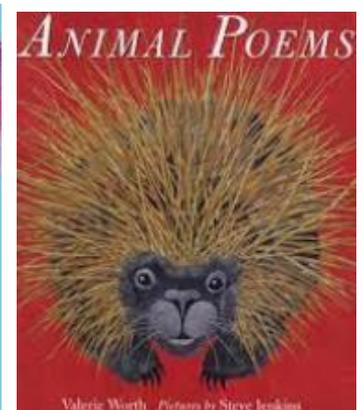

Hogwarts are reading the graphic novel "Illegal" by Eoin Colfer They have been working on developing the reading skills of inference, retrieving facts from the text and making predictions based on what they have read so far. Being a graphic novel, pupils will learn that we can also infer from the images.

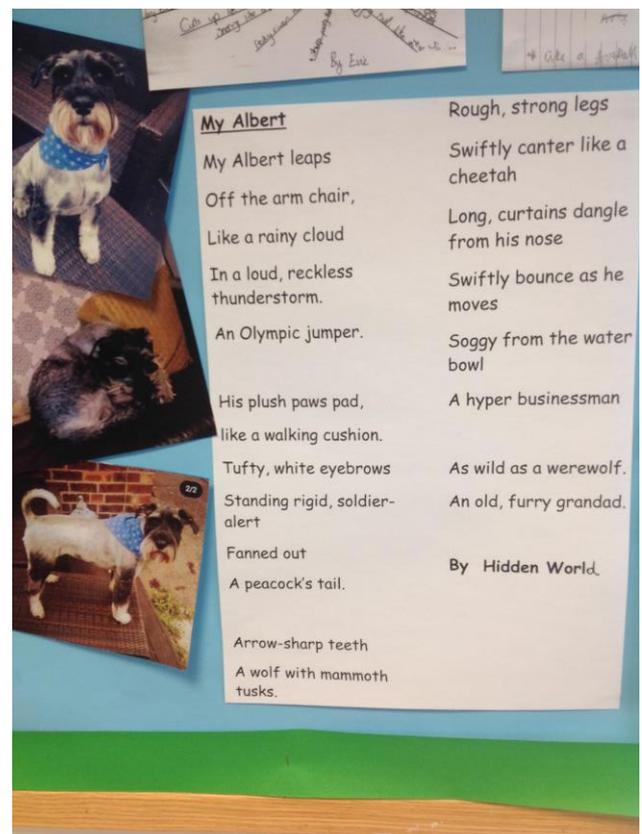

Narnia Year 3

Narnia Year 4

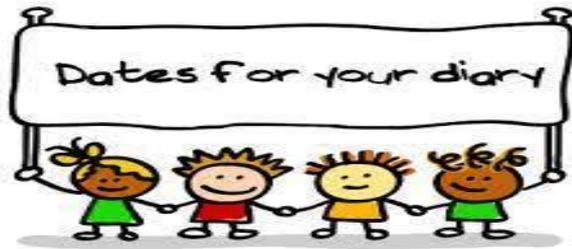

George's Marvellous Medicine is loved by children and adults. We look into how Roald Dahl makes the reader feel sorry for George. A great stimulus for writing recipes too. Reading a variety of animal poems have been a stimulus for some wonderful poems by children in year 4. They wrote a poem in shared writing.

National Gardening Week

Neverland had fabulous fun tidying the pond area as part of National Gardening Week. They worked very hard clearing away weeds and leaves. They even found time to plant a variety of beans as part of their science topic. I asked if they were baked beans but they said they were runner and broad beans.

The group currently have places for Beavers (6-8 years) Cubs (8-10 years) and Scouts (10 -14 years). Currently they are holding their meetings outside with strict COVID measures for the summer term. Jennifer Higgs, the Beaver section leader explained they have lots of fun, exciting and educational activities planned which both boys and girls can get involved in. They are excited to be able to meet face to face again and the recent meetings have been well received by both young people and parents.
